In our country, everything is getting bigger. The more things that you have, the higher your status in most circles. But just because you have more stuff, a bigger house, and more cars and take more vacations does not mean that you are happy. While the current American thought is that you should get as much as possible, there are many who want to change things up and see smaller as better.

This is where the tiny home movement has begun. People don't see the point of having huge mansions just to hold their things. They see the current way of life as wasteful and hard on the environment. Instead of aiming for bigger, they aim for smaller - way smaller. In fact the average tiny home is less than 400 square feet. Considering that the average American home is now more than 2,000 square feet, this is a huge difference.

Creating a tiny home, or a small home if you still like the idea of going smaller but can't handle 400 square feet or smaller, can take a lot of work. You will most likely have to build your own home; there aren't many of these hanging around ready for you to purchase.
