Howgills and Limestone Trail: A New Walk in the Footsteps of Alfred Wainwright David Pitt, Heather Pitt

David & Heather Pitt, who re-created Alfred Wainwright's famous 1938 'Pennine Journey', with maps by Ron Scholes and illustrations by Colin Bywater, here describe a new 76-mile long-distance walk from Kirkby Stephen to Settle. This pictorial guide follows a route through this picturesque and, in parts, demanding area of Cumbria and North Yorkshire - with a short diversion into Lancashire. It can be used in conjunction with Wainwright's Walks in Limestone Country and Walks in the Howgill Fells. The route has strong associations with railways. It passes over the spectacular Smardale Gill viaduct, and close to the Stainmore Railway, the disused Ingleton and Tebay Railway, and the Settle-Carlisle railway.
