Not illustrated. 1861 Excerpt: ...but it was repugnant to almost all of them that they should fight against men of their own race; for there was little else there who could do anything great, except Englishmen on each side; and also they would not that this country Swegen, and Tostig and his wife, Baldwine of Bruges' kinswoman, and his son Gyrrh. And earl Harold and Leofwine went to Bristol, in the ship which earl Swegen had before made ready and provisioned for himself. And the king sent bishop Ealdred from London with a body of men; and they of Worcester, were ta overtake him ere he came on shipboard; but they could not, or they would not. And he then went out from the mouth of the Avon, and encountered such rigorous weather, that he with difficulty got away; and he there sustained much damage. He then went on to Ireland, when favourable weather came. And Godwine and those who were with him went from Thorney to Bruges, to Baldwine's land, in a ship, with as much treasure as they could possibly stow for each man. It would have seemed wonderful to evtjry man that was in England, if any man before that had said that it would so happen; for he had been before exalted to that degree, as if he ruled the king and all England; and his sons were earls and the king's darlings, and his daughter was wedded and married to the king: she was brought to Wherwell, and committed to the abbess. Then soon came count 'William from beyond sea, of Normandy. with a great body of Frenchmen, and the king received him and as many of his companions as it pleased him, and let him go again. In this same year the bishopric of London was given to William the priest, which had before been given to Spearhafoc." An. M.lii. In this year died iElfgyfu the lady, relict of king.iEthelred and king Cnut, on the iind of the ...
